

We are pleased to announce the launch of the BC Emergency Medicine Network – an innovative approach to provincial emergency care. The BC Emergency Medicine Network aims to improve patient care by sharing clinical resources, bridging communication gaps and strengthening relationships between emergency practitioners across BC. The vision is “Exceptional emergency care. Everywhere.”

Through the Network’s online platform, practitioners can access, share and comment on the latest clinical resources. The site also enables discussions between members on various topics in its online forum, and showcases the latest research in emergency medicine and continuing professional development opportunities in BC.

“if we imagine the [emergency] network, you’re basically trying to build a community. A hospital. But it’s a virtual community.” – Quesnel, MD

It is anticipated that this innovative, systems approach will provide real and sustainable improvements in all BC emergency departments and will facilitate stronger links between clinicians and researchers, policy experts, health authorities, government, and patients.

The BC Emergency Medicine Network is supported by the BC SUPPORT Unit, Academic Health Sciences Network, Institute for Health System Transformation and Sustainability, Ministry of Health, Faculty of Medicine, and The Rural Coordination Centre of BC.

For more information, please visit the BC Emergency Medicine Network Website:

www.bcemergencynetwork.ca and join the conversation on Twitter @BCEmergMedNtwrk

